

restaurant in Sixth avenue for many years. He is well-to-do and commands the respect of the merchants of the neighborhood.

Miss Anderson, in addition to her superabundance of good looks, is well educated and has charming manners. She has known Mr. Goelet a long time, but how they came to meet originally is not known to her acquaintances.

Robert Goelet, Jr., is one of the richest young men in New York. He is twenty-three years old and two years ago when he reached his majority, he was given $500,000 in cash from the estate of his father. In two years more he will come into full possession of the enormous fortune which was left to him and his sister May.

HE IS FOND OF SPORTS.

He is a graduate of Harvard, where he was immensely popular. In amateur theatricals he excelled. He was the manager of several amateur performances, in one of which he played the part of Juliet. Not possessing the physique necessary to qualify him for admission to the rowing, baseball or football crews he took an intense interest in sports, nevertheless. He is a good boxer and a capital cross-country rider.

Since the craze for automobiles has seized society he has become known as a skilful chauffeur. He was arrested once in Boston and once in Newport for exceeding the speed limit in the streets with his machine.

In May, 1900, while riding one of his horses in a hurdle race at the meet of the Brookline Country Club he was severely injured. The horse fell on him. For a time his life was despaired of and it took months at Newport for him to recuperate.

Mr. Goelet is a bosom friend of Reginald Vanderbilt. He was one of the party of young men who went with Mr. Vanderbilt to Canfield's gambling-house on the occasion when Mr. Vanderbilt was said to have lost a great deal of money. There was a rumor that District-Attorney Jerome had subpoenaed out for Mr. Goelet. If he did, it was never served.

The young man returned from Europe only a few days ago. He spent most of the summer abroad, sailing his yacht in many races and winning a cup at Copenhagen. Miss Anderson is said to have spent the summer at the country place of her father at Patchogue, L. I.

Father Lavelle, of the Cathedral, was shown this afternoon, a copy of the sixth edition of The Evening World containing the exclusive announcement of the visit to his residence of Robert Goelet and Eleanor Anderson, the telegraph operator at the Grand Hotel. He read the story carefully and then said:

"If you had been married under the same circumstances you wouldn't expect the priest to violate your confidence would you? Have you seen the young man?"

The Evening World reporter replied that Mr. Goelet had not been found.

"Evidently," said Father Lavelle, "he is keeping out of the way. If he cannot be found it is evidence that he does not want it known."

"Will you affirm or deny the report that you have married Mr. Goelet and Miss Anderson?" he was asked.

"I can say nothing at all about it," he replied. "See the young man. He is the proper person to talk to."

PAPA ANDERSON PROUD OF HIS DAUGHTER.

Mr. Anderson is a large, jolly man with a red mustache. He gets to his place of business about noon and takes charge, alternating behind the bar and behind the oyster counter. An Evening World reporter met him as he was on his way to the restaurant to-day and asked him if he knew that his daughter Eleanor had been to the Cathedral with Robert Goelet.

"I'm going to give that out to all the papers to-night," said Mr. Anderson.

"It is now noon," said the reporter, looking at his watch. "Is it not likely that the ceremony has already been performed?"

"No, they're not married yet," was the reply.

"Have you seen your daughter to-day?" asked the reporter.

"I haven't had anything to do with this," answered Mr. Anderson.

"My wife is running it. I have three sons and two daughters, and if I do say it myself, my girls are about the finest in town. Two of my boys work here with me."

"Now, I'll tell you how I got into the oyster business over here. I was opening oysters over on Second avenue before I was married. My wife is a niece of old Hiram Glynn, who had oyster houses on Broadway for forty years. I got in with him and succeeded to his business in Broadway just below Forty-second street, next to the old St. Cloud. When they tore those buildings down I moved over here."

HE'S A TAMMANY HALL MAN.

"George McClellan is a friend of mine. He used to come into my place. I've been a Tammany man all my life and helped elect Judge Dugro an Alderman as far back as 1878."

"Do you know Mr. Goelet?" inquired the reporter.

"I don't think he was ever in my place," Mr. Anderson replied. "If he was I don't know it."

An Evening World reporter called at the home of Mrs. Ogden Goelet, No. 591 Fifth avenue, this afternoon, and sent his card to Mrs. Goelet. He was informed that she was in bed ill. Then he sent by the butler the substance of the report that his son and Miss Anderson had called at the Cathedral to consult with Father Lavelle about being married. She referred him to the office of the estate of Ogden Goelet, No. 9 West Seventeenth street.

At this office a gentleman who said he was in charge asserted that he could not affirm nor deny the report about Mr. Goelet. He said that the young man had not been around there for four days.

Mrs. Ogden Goelet is the daughter of Richard T. Wilson, the millionaire banker. One of her sisters is the widow of Sir Michael Herbert, who was English Ambassador to the United States when he died in Switzerland a few weeks ago. Another sister is Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt.

Rehearsals for the Roxburgh-May Goelet wedding were to have been held to-day. The fairest of the maidens of New York society have been asked to act as bridesmaids and maids of honor.

Miss Anderson learned telegraphy when she was fifteen years old at the training school in Cooper Union. When she had attained proficiency seven years ago she entered the main office of the Western Union as a relief operator and was sent to small offices all over town for several years. About two and a half years ago she went to the Grand Hotel, where she has given perfect satisfaction, not only to the company but to the hotel management.

Some time last Saturday Miss Anderson called up the main office on the wire and announced that she was ill. She asked that an operator be sent to relieve her. The relief operator has been on duty ever since.

ANDERSONS? OH, THEY ARE GONE AWAY FROM HERE

The Andersons live in a modest double-decker flat at No. 330 West Fifty-first street. Formerly their home was at No. 66 West Fifty-third street. There have been strange doings around the Anderson flat to-day.

Early this morning a lady, presumably Mrs. Anderson, went to the "letter-boxes" on the first floor, extracted the name Anderson from the plate and inserted the name Mackintosh. When an Evening World reporter got to the house he searched in vain for the name Anderson and made inquiries of the janitor.

"The Andersons moved away from here three weeks ago," said the janitor.

"From here?" asked the reporter.

"Yes, from here," was the reply. "They were moved by a man by the name of Coleman, I think, but maybe his name is something else."

The janitor said that the Andersons had moved away from there and that every tenant in the house but one. He said that Mrs. Anderson was a Jew girl.

The reporter rang the bell at the door of the alleged Mackintosh flat and was confronted by a stout lady who had all the appearances of anger. When addressed as Mrs. Anderson she said that Anderson was not her name.

"The Andersons," she added, "moved away from here three weeks ago. If they ever lived here at all."

Some time after this a messenger boy with a letter addressed to Mrs. Anderson reached the Mackintosh flat. He said he came from Sherry's.

The letter was taken and opened by a tall young lady with golden hair. She refused to sign the messenger boy's slip, and after she had read the letter she tore it up and threw the pieces into the hall. She said it was not for her and that her name was not Anderson.

"The Andersons," she told the boy, "moved away from here three weeks ago."

PREPARATIONS FOR MAY GOELET'S NUPTIALS.

Arrangements for the marriage of the Duke of Roxburgh to Miss May Goelet, next Tuesday, have been completed. The Duchess of Roxburgh, mother of the Duke, and his sister, Lady Isabel Innes-Ker, arrived in New York to-day. The bridesmaids are to be Lady Isabel Innes-Ker, Miss Beatrice Mills, Miss Martha Johnston, Miss Alice Babcock, Miss Therese Iselin, Miss Marion Haven, Miss Thayer, of Boston, and Miss Pauline Whittier. They will wear pink mouseline de soie, trimmed with ermine lace, and hats of pink velvet, trimmed with ermine lace and bands of sable. The gown of the bride will be of heavy white satin with old rose point lace and point d'Alencon.

The best man will be Capt. the Hon. Reginald Ward, who is a brother of Lord Dudley. The ushers will be the Hon. Hugo Baring, brother of Lord Revelstoke, Harold Brassey, son of the late Henry Brassey; Robert Walton Gidley, cousin of the bride; William Woodward, formerly in the American Embassy in London; Henry Rodgers, Winthrop and Henry Washington Bull.

It had been expected that Robert Goelet, known in the family as "Bobby," would give his sister away, but in view of the developments of the last two days it is hardly likely that he will perform that function. In case he does not, Miss Goelet will be given away by her grandfather, Richard T. Wilson. She will get $500,000 from the estate of her father as a wedding gift, besides numerous diamonds from her mother and other relatives.

The list of invitations to the wedding and the reception is exceedingly small and there are many heartburnings in consequence. On account of the recent death of Sir Michael Herbert, the son-in-law of Mr. Goelet, the ceremony will be simple and there will be scarcely any decorations. The bridegroom will present to each of the bridesmaids a diamond brooch. This is an English custom.

MISS ANDERSON—From a Sketch.

"SILENT SMITH" SERIOUSLY ILL

Wealthiest Bachelor of America Poisoned in England at Elaborate Banquet Where He Was Entertaining Titled Society.

Cable despatches received in New York to-day say that James Henry Smith, the richest bachelor of America, and the highest prize in the high social matrimonial contest, was poisoned a few days ago at Hursley, England, where he has been visiting his sister, Mrs. George Cooper, while he attended the slottings at Dunashill, Scotland. It is said that at one of the elaborate banquets with which he has been entertaining the most exclusive and royal society of England, he was poisoned. This seems strange, in view of the fact that he had taken with him from London his chef, to whom he paid $20,000, and whose particular mission it is to prepare his individual food.

Mr. Smith was to have sailed for New York a few days ago, but it is now said that he cannot start for some time because of his illness. In fact, he is not yet out of danger and the apprehension concerning him is tense.

Postpones Tuxedo Entertainment. Mr. Smith's agents recently purchased the house at Tuxedo, which was given to the T. Sufferin Tailors as a wedding present from the bride's father, Pierre Lorillard. There he had planned to entertain on a scale of magnificence which would dazzle the ideas of a romantic.

Until three years ago Mr. Smith was known as "Silent Smith" in Wall street, where he was a broker. His fortune, while always ample, was nothing extraordinary until three years ago, when his uncle, George Smith, also a bachelor, died in London and left him almost all of his fortune, which he had made in the wall paper business in this country. That bequest made James Henry Smith worth $100,000,000, or so much money, it is said, that he has not since known how much he is worth.

In his unsuccessful attempts to spend only the income he has leaped into prominence as a most unique and lavish entertainer. He chartered Anthony Drexel's yacht Margatita and went to Europe last spring. Since then he has been spending money lavishly.

It is said that he has not since known how much he is worth.

HELLO GIRL TELLS OF BOBBY GOELET'S ROMANCE

Chum of Miss Anderson, Who Is to Marry Him, Declares She Has the 400 All Beaten for Looks.

At the Grand Hotel, where Miss Anderson has been employed for some time as a telegraph operator, all the help, from the head clerk to the humblest bell boy, were overjoyed at the news that Mr. Goelet and Miss Anderson had talked to Father Lavelle of being married. Miss Anderson's queenly beauty and dignified demeanor, coupled with her gracious disposition, have made her the favorite of the hostelry.

Her most intimate and particular friend is Rosa Stein, a pretty young woman, who operates the telephone keyboard, which is just alongside the desk of the telegraph operator.

GLAD ABOUT HER GOOD LUCK.

It is plain to see that Miss Stein is all excitement over the affair. She is sincerely glad that Miss Anderson has the prospect of becoming the wife of one of the richest young men in New York society.

"Why, their romance," she said, "is just perfectly beautiful. It is grand, almost like a novel. I am sure I never read a novel that was so perfectly sweet."

"Now, somebody has said that Ella was once employed as cashier in her father's restaurant. The idea is just perfectly absurd. Her father would never let her be around the restaurant. It is true that her younger sister used to help out there once in a while, but I honestly believe that Ella never put her feet inside the front door."

IT WAS ALL IN CONFIDENCE.

"I saw Ella last night, but what she told me was in perfect confidence, and I wouldn't betray it for the whole wide world. I don't know whether they are married or not, and if I did I really wouldn't tell, because Ella is my friend and what she told me is looked up as a secret in my heart."

"Mr. Goelet is a perfectly charming young man. Have I met him? Why, certainly. And I want to say that in Ella Anderson he is going to get a wife who is the equal of any woman in the Four Hundred. She has got all of them beaten for looks. She has beautiful golden hair, and the sweetest expression you ever saw. If you just only knew their romance you would think the same as I do about it. It is just too perfectly sweet for anything."

"It is said," suggested the reporter, "that Mrs. Goelet objected to the marriage because Miss Anderson is a Catholic."

"The idea is perfectly absurd," answered the telephone operator, with a toss of her head.

JUDGE REBUKES LAWYER.

Magistrate Flammer Orders Joseph Rosenbach to Get Out of Court.

Joseph Rosenbach, a lawyer, whose office is at No. 304 West Fifty-fourth street, was ordered out of the West Side Police Court by Magistrate Flammer to-day.

Rosenbach had been defending Victor Holmes, a colored hotel-keeper, of No. 174 West Twenty-eighth street, accused of keeping a disorderly house, and Magistrate Flammer had ordered him to leave the court for trial. The lawyer made some inaudible remark, and Magistrate Flammer immediately asked:

"What is that you say?"

"I say," said Rosenbach, "that, we have had seven on the stand already."

"Don't you talk like that," said Magistrate Flammer, "or I'll hold you for contempt. You do not show respect for the Court."

Rosenbach subsided and stood talking with Holmes on the outside. The Magistrate was putting his signature to the commitment papers.

"Will you parole the defendant on the same bail until this afternoon?" asked Rosenbach, the papers having been made out holding the prisoner in $2,000 bail for trial.

"I will," said Magistrate Flammer, "but you get out of here; get out beyond the rail."

Rosenbach and his client hurried out of court.

Rheumatism Is Not a Skin Disease.

Most people have an idea that rheumatism is contracted like a cold, that the damp, chilly air penetrates the muscles and joints and causes the terrible aches and pains, or that it is something like a skin disease to be rubbed away with liniment or drawn out with plasters; but Rheumatism originates in the blood and is caused by Uric Acid, an irritating, corroding poison that settles in muscles, joints and nerves, producing inflammation and soreness and the sharp, cutting pains peculiar to this distressing disease.

Exposure to bad weather or sudden chilling of the body will hasten an attack of Rheumatism after the blood and system are in the right condition for it to develop, but have nothing to do with the real true causes of Rheumatism, which are entirely well. Mrs. ALICE BOBTON, 311 12th St., Bowling Green, Ky.

Liniments, plasters and rubbing will sometimes reduce the inflammation and swelling and ease the pain for a time, but fail to relieve permanently because they do not remove the cause. Rheumatism because it attacks the Uric Acid poison is neutralized, the sluggish circulation stimulated and quickened, and soon the system is purified and cleansed, the aching muscles and joints are relieved of all irritating matter, and a lasting cure of this most painful disease effected.

S. S. S. is a harmless vegetable remedy, unequalled as a blood purifier and an invigorating, pleasant tonic. Book on Rheumatism will be mailed free.
